CACHET ACQUIRES GOLF COMPANY TO MARKET AIR FORCE ONE® GOLF CLUB

New Pressurized Golf Club Introduced By Cachet Available For Purchase In Late Fall. This Club Will Revolutionize Your Game.

Pasadena, California, May 7, 2008 – Cachet Banq is pleased to announce that National Services Inc. (NSI), a sister company of Cachet, has purchased Plus One Sports, DBA: Powerbilt (POS). POS is a nationally exclusive golf distributor for Hillerich and Bradsby Co. (H&B), which is based in Kentucky, and is the manufacturer of the Louisville Slugger. NSI's acquisition of controlling interest in POS, is another step forward in marketing the patented Air Force One® Golf Driver, a new pressurized golf club, introduced by Cachet.

Micheline Chabana, Senior Vice President of Sales and Marketing for Cachet Banq states, "We are absolutely thrilled about this acquisition. Cachet has been using the Air Force One® golf club as an ancillary marketing tool at industry conferences and trade shows over the years. We have always received such tremendous feedback and interest in the Air Force One® golf club; therefore, we are especially pleased about the opportunity to sign on with a major sports marketing company like H&B. It is an exciting opportunity for both Cachet and Plus One Sports. We are extremely proud to be associated with H&B, one of America's few remaining manufacturing companies with an absolutely excellent reputation."

The Air Force One® Driver is a new pressurized golf club and is the brain child of the founder of Cachet. Earlier versions of the Air Force One® driver have been awarded in prize drawings at the Cachet Banq booth during industry conventions over the last few years. A select group of golfers who were fortunate to win the golf club, have proudly reported that the Air Force One® driver has significantly improved their game. Lab testing has shown that the Air Force One® club not only increased distance, but also dramatically improved the disbursement pattern when balls are struck on the heel or toe of the club. The Air Force One® Golf Driver is scheduled to be available for purchase in late Fall 2008.
